

Chasing my toilet!

In the country of England, there lived a little boy called Mike. His mum was a police officer and his dad was a military soldier so they both had experience with battle and defence. However, Mike had most experience in the toilet. There was never one day without him going into the toilet at least four or five times. But one night, Mike heard a crumble and a crack sound so he tiptoed out of bed, got his dressing gown on, opened his bedroom door and crawled into the direction of the sound which led to the bathroom. Once he got to the bathroom door, he opened it up and to his shock the toilet that he minded his business on was standing on two feet looking at Mike with a worried look. Then the toilet pushed him out of the way then got down the stairs and smashed through the door. His parents accelerated out their room and held Mike as hard as possible. Mike knew that his parents wouldn't believe him so he tried to keep his mouth shut for as long as he could. At the beginning of the week, Mike kept seeing the toilet at the corner of his eye and got annoyed at the stupid faces it pulled up at him. Tuesday was worse because at school the toilet tried to bond with him which embarrassed him and made his friends laugh out loud at him. Wednesday was Mike's revenge day and at home he pondered a scheme to teach that toilet a lesson. Mike's mum and dad didn't know about it so in his bedroom he tried to not speak too loud otherwise mum and dad would've got suspicious of what an earth he was doing. The plan was to lure the toilet into the bathroom, try to at least get it to sleep and super glue it to where it should be. Thursday evening was the night of Mike's revenge to get the toilet to its original position. But first he had to make sure his parents were asleep so the plot can hit. Mike checked his parents room and they were slumped on the sofa, asleep. So, Mike went outside and tried to attract the toilet's attention. Crash, bang, honk. The toilet peeked behind the lamppost and waddled towards Mike in confusion. Mike was surprised that this was working so Mike slowly opened the door and went backwards up the stairs.

Mike had the super glue behind his back. After, Mike got to the bathroom and made the toilet sit down in the middle of the room. Then, Mike started a story which was about ten minutes long. The toilet was now fast asleep so Mike lifted the toilet with all his might and smacked the super glue all over the bottom of the toilet. 'Mission completed!' yelled Mike and now Mike can get on that toilet seat and start minding his own business on the toilet again.

Alessia-rose J

Rosen class